Chamber: Fall Fest went well. There was discussion regarding doing a hometown hero's project which would consist of having banners made up for hometown veterans and placing them on the City light poles downtown. No money would be requested from the City just the assistance in putting up the banners before Memorial Day and removing them after Veterans day. This project is still in the early phases, but they could put up 18 people per year and rotate them if there were more people interested. Kristen Harper is the citizen of the year and South Fork was selected as the business of the year. November 18th is the annual banquet and it will be at Big Bear.
